CORRECT TEXT
Fill in the blank with the appropriate term. _____ encryption is a type of encryption that uses two keys, i.e., a public key and a private key pair for data encryption. It is also known as public key encryption.
Answer:
Explanation:
Asymmetric
Explanation:
Asymmetric encryption is a type of encryption that uses two keys, i.e., a public key and a private key pair for data encryption. The public key is available to everyone, while the private or secret key is available only to the recipient of the message. For example, when a user sends a message or data to another user, the sender uses the public key to encrypt the data. The receiver uses his private key to decrypt the data.

NEW QUESTION: 2
A type of access control that supports the management of access rights for groups of subjects is:
A. Role-based
B. Discretionary
C. Rule-based
D. Mandatory
Answer: A
Explanation:
Role-based access control assigns identical privileges to groups of users. This approach simplifies the management of access rights, particularly when members of the group change. Thus, access rights are assigned to a role, not to an individual. Individuals are entered as members of specific groups and are assigned the access privileges of that group.
In answer Discretionary, the access rights to an object are assigned by the owner at the owner's discretion. For large numbers of people whose duties and participation may change frequently, this type of access control can become unwieldy. Mandatory access control, answer c, uses security labels or classifications assigned to data items and clearances assigned to users. A user has access rights to data items with a classification equal to or less than the user's clearance. Another restriction is that the user has to have a need-to-know the information; this requirement is identical to the principle of least privilege.
Answer 'rule-based access control' assigns access rights based on stated rules. An example of a rule is Access to trade-secret data is restricted to corporate officers, the data owner and the legal department.
